SANDY SPRINGS, Ga. - A former ski instructor at a Georgia resort was sentenced to 10 years in federal prison for stealing more than $4 million from an elderly former client. U.S. District Court Judge Richard Story sentenced Richard Parrott, 41, of Georgia on Tuesday. The sentencing comes after he pleaded guilty to one count of aggravated identity theft. The U.S. Secret Service and Georgia Department of Public Safety arrested Parrott in March. He is accused of using an ATM card stolen from the elderly man, among other crimes. Story says Parrott posed as a physician and stole $4,175,000 from the man during the five years he was his client. Parrott was also sentenced to three years of supervised release after he is released from prison. Ask HN: What are the better ideas to build out of HN comments? - alphadoggs HN is the best platform I know of to share ideas and get feedback. I also use it to promote my own startup, Zenly ('s been the best way to take this great community's ideas and build out of it? I have an in-progress idea but not sure where to take it. ====== coffeeaddicted I started a new service which lets people actually buy these ideas. I think the best ones should be supported, so that users can subscribe and make sure the idea stays around. Then there is also something for the other way around - if you are already interested in an idea and want to know more about it, you should be able to contact the owner. It doesn't sound like you want to build a marketplace, but I am curious if there are other markets out there that are doing this. ~~~ alphadoggs I'm not really interested in building a marketplace, but if there is one out there, I'd love to hear about it. ------ gexla Sounds like you are just trying to provide an idea repository for the HN crowd. In my opinion, unless you can build a community around a specific idea, people just won't care. The people who do care, probably already know about it. I suppose it might be good if you have a client base, but that's not the point 82157476af
